

The "Do Not Call" list is the one of the greatest things we have in the communications field now. One problem though is that companies are overcoming the law by using the guise of "calling for a survey" which excludes them from the list. This farce needs to be included in the bylaws of the list.